
CALL FOR PAPERS

Family – Fertility – Intergenerational Relationships

Annual Conference 2018 of the German Society for Demography (DGD) in collaboration with the Netherlands Demographic Society (NVD)

The annual conference 2018 of the German Society for Demography (DGD) is held in collaboration with the Netherlands Demographic Society (NVD). The primary focus of the conference is the relationship between family behavior, fertility and intergenerational relationships. Questions that are to be addressed in this conference are: How did family and fertility behavior change across generations? How do parents' and children's fertility behavior, child preferences and partnership dynamics relate to each other? How does fertility and partnership behavior influence intergenerational relationships? For example, how does the increase in divorce, separation and the growing prevalence of stepfamilies impact the relationships of the different generations? How do patterns vary across social groups? How do they differ across European countries?

Apart from topics that fall into the major theme of this conference, we also invite contributions that address any of the themes covered by the Working Groups of the DGD and the NVD. The following themes are available:

- Family, fertility, intergenerational relationships (Michaela Kreyenfeld, Aart Liefbroer und Leo van Wissen)
- Family, migration and health (Eva Kibele, Enno Nowossadeck)
- Variations in mortality and morbidity (Fanny Janssen, Gabriele Doblhammer)
- Family, fertility and intergenerational relationships in a migration context (Nadja Milewski, Susanne Schmid)
- Migration (Pascal Becker)
- Dynamics and measurement of childbearing preferences (Petra Buhr, Michael Feldhaus)
- Demographic and societal developments in Germany (Philipp Deschermeier, Christina Wilke)
- Demographic data and methods (Roland Rau, Felix zur Nieden)
- Digitization and family (Michael Feldhaus, Phillip Deschermeier)
- Family, fertility and intergenerational relationships in a regional context (Steffen Maretzke, Matthias Förster)
- Poster session (Michaela Kreyenfeld)

Venue & Time: The conference will take place at the University of Cologne on March 14-16, 2018.

Abstracts (max. 300 words) can be uploaded on the conference site of the German Society for Demography (<https://dgd-online.de/jahrestagung/annual-conference-2018-in-cologne/>) Deadline for submissions is 31 December 2017.

Information for students: Students of demography or related disciplines are welcome to submit an abstract for a poster contribution. A limited amount of travel funds for students is available.